NATIONAL RAILROAD ADJUSTMENT BOARD
SECOND DIVISION

The Second Division consisted of the regular members and in addition Referee Paul C. Dugan when award was rendered.

SYSTEM FEDERATION NO. 29, RAILWAY EMPLOYEES'
DEPARTMENT, AFL-CIO (Carmen)

GULF, MOBILE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY
(Southern Region)

DISPUTE: CLAIM OF EMPLOYEES:

1. That under the current agreement the Carrier improperly refused to compensate Carman W. F. Heath and Carmen Helpers William Avant and R. P. Kinard eight (8) hours at the pro rata rate of pay for September 5, 1960 (Labor Day).
2. That accordingly the Carrier be required to compensate them for eight (8) hours each at the straight time rate of pay.

EMPLOYEES' STATEMENT OF FACTS: Carman W. F. Heath and Carmen Helpers William Avant and R. P. Kinard, hereinafter referred to as the claimants, are employed by the Gulf, Mobile and Ohio Railroad, hereinafter referred to as the carrier, at Louisville, Mississippi with seniority dates of September 25, 1957, March 1, 1934 and September 24, 1945 respectively.

On date of August 29, 1960 notice was posted reducing the force of carmen, including Claimant Heath, effective at the close of the day September 2, 1960. This same notice included the abolishing of all carmen helper's jobs at Louisville and furloughing all the occupants effective same date.

The claimants had been working regularly on positions Monday through Friday prior to being furloughed.

September 5, 1960 (Labor Day) fell on Monday. The claimants worked on September 2, 1960 which was the work day immediately preceding the holiday in question. They were available for service on September 6, 1960, which was the work day following the holiday, but were not called.

They did not receive the eight (8) hours pro rata rate for September 5, 1960.

Of the furloughed employees involved in this case, three complied with the agreement and if it had been necessary to use any of the furloughed employees on the holiday, September 5, or the day following, the agreement required the carrier to use those who had signified their desire to perform work. On the other hand, claimants in this case by not signifying their desire to be available had by their silence signified their desire to be not available.

As stated in the statement of facts, those employees who complied with the Agreement by signifying their desire to be available for work were paid the holiday pay. Had the claimants desired to be available the Agreement is very clear as to what they should have done. The claimants having failed to make themselves available under the agreement are not entitled to holiday pay. The claimants did not comply with the agreement to entitle them to holiday pay and the claim for such pay should be denied.

FINDINGS: The Second Division of the Adjustment Board, upon the whole record and all the evidence, finds that:

The carrier or carriers and the employee or employees involved in this dispute are respectively carrier and employee within the meaning of the Railway Labor Act as approved June 21, 1934.

This Division of the Adjustment Board has jurisdiction over the dispute involved herein.

Parties to said dispute were given due notice of hearing thereon.

Claimants (1 Carman and 2 Carman Helpers) were furloughed Friday, September 2, 1960. Claims are being made for holiday pay for Labor Day, Monday, September 5, 1960. Claimants worked September 2, 1960, the workday immediately preceding the holiday, but did not work on September 6, 1960, the day immediately following the holiday in question, because Carrier failed to call them for service on said day.

The sole issue involved in this dispute is whether or not the Claimants herein were "available for service" as required by Section 3, Article III, August 19, 1960 Agreement, governing the parties herein.

The pertinent provisions of said Section 3, Article III, reads as follows:

"All others for whom holiday pay is provided in Section 1 hereof shall qualify for such holiday pay if on the workday preceding and the workday following the holiday they satisfy one or the other of the following conditions:

- (i) Compensation for service paid by the Carrier is credited; or
- (ii) Such employee is available for service.

NOTE: 'Available' as used in subsection (ii) above is interpreted by the parties to mean that an employee is available unless he lays off of his own accord or does not respond to a call, pursuant to the rules of the applicable agreement, for service."

The Claimants' position is that they had compensated service for the workday immediately preceding the holiday in question; that they did not lay off of their own accord and did not fail to respond to a call pursuant to the rules of the applicable agreement and were therefore available for service on the workday immediately following the holiday in accord with the controlling provisions of said 2nd paragraph of Section 3, Article III, of the '60 Agreement.

The Carrier's contention is that the Claimants were not "available for service" within the purview of said 2nd paragraph of Section 3, Article III, of the August 19, 1960 Agreement because the Claimants herein did not comply with paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article IV of the August 21, 1954 Agreement, which provides:

"The Carrier shall have the right to use furloughed employees to perform extra work, and relief work on regular positions during absence of regular occupants, provided such employees have signified in the manner provided in paragraph 2 hereof their desire to be so used.

Furloughed employees desiring to be considered available to perform such extra and relief work will notify the proper officer of the Carrier in writing, with copy to the local chairman, that they will be available and desire to be used for such work."

Carrier points out that the claimants did not, in this instance, notify their supervisor in writing of their desire to be considered available on the workday immediately following said holiday.

We do not agree with Carrier's contention that the claimants were required by said Article IV of the '54 Agreement to notify the Carrier of their desire to be considered available for relief work in order to qualify for holiday pay under the applicable provisions of Section 3, Article III, of the '60 Agreement. This Board said in Third Division Award 14635:

"It would have been a simple matter, had the parties to this Agreement desired Article IV of the 1954 Agreement to have been a determining factor, to have clearly stated so in their definition of available set out in the Note of Section 3, Article III of the 1960 Agreement. They did not."

Further, Carrier was free to call Claimants for service inasmuch as there is nothing in said Section 3, Article III of the 1960 Agreement that prevented or hindered Carrier from calling them for service after the Labor Day holiday. If Carrier had called Claimants and they had failed to respond to a call, then the result herein would be different. However, since the Carrier failed to call Claimants for service on the day immediately following said Labor Day holiday, Carrier cannot now complain that Claimants were not available within the scope of applicable provisions of Article III of the '60 Agreement.

Therefore, in view of the fact that Claimants were "available for service" within the intent and meaning of the 2nd paragraph, Section 3, Article III of the 1960 Agreement and it being undisputed that the Claimants met all the other requirements of the applicable provisions of said 1960 Agreement, their claims must be sustained.

NATIONAL RAILROAD ADJUSTMENT BOARD By Order of SECOND DIVISION

ATTEST: Charles C. McCarthy
Executive Secretary

Dated at Chicago, Illinois, this 31st day of March, 1967.

DISSENT OF CARRIER MEMBERS TO AWARDS NOS. 5061-5090 INCLUSIVE, AND AWARDS NOS. 5120, 5123 and 5134

In its Award No. 5061 the Board finds, based on an affirmative contention by the employes, that claimants were "available for service" within the intent and meaning of the second paragraph, Section 3, Article III, of the August 19, 1960 Agreement and, therefore, their claims must be sustained.

The decision in this case has been followed in 29 companion cases (Awards Nos. 5062 through 5090).

The "Note" to Section 3, Article III, HOLIDAYS, of the August 19, 1960 Agreement reads as follows:

"NOTE: 'Available' as used in subsection (ii) above is interpreted by the parties to mean that an employe is available unless he lays off of his own accord or does not respond to a call, pursuant to the rules of the applicable agreement, for service." (Emphasis ours.)

The respondent carriers in these awards adopted Article IV of the August 21, 1954 Agreement, paragraph 2 of which reads as follows:

"2. Furloughed employes desiring to be considered available to perform such extra and relief work will notify the proper officer of the Carrier in writing, with copy to the local chairman, that they will be available and desire to be used for such work. A furloughed employe may withdraw his written notice of willingness to perform such work at any time before being called for such service by giving written notice to that effect to the proper Carrier officer, with copy to the local chairman. If such employe should again desire to be considered available for such service notice to that effect—as outlined hereinabove—must again be given in writing. Furloughed employes who would not at all times be available for such service will not be considered available for extra and relief work under the provisions of this rule. Furloughed employes so used will not be subject to rules of the applicable collective agreements which require advance notice before reduction of force."

then follows Note 1 which is applicable to the employees herein involved reading:

"NOTE 1: In the application of this rule to employees who are represented by the organizations affiliated with the Railway Employees Department A.F. of L., it shall not apply to extra work."

and the above rule and note were admittedly in full force and effect at all times involved in these cases.

It is significant that there was recognition on the part of many employees covered by the rules agreements of the crafts in the Federated Trades that the provisions of Article IV of the August 21, 1954 Agreement have full application on the properties involved in the present cases. A review of these cases will show conclusively that various employees filed individual notices of availability for relief service under the rule and having met the qualifications of Article III of the National Agreement of August 19, 1960 they qualified for and did receive holiday pay. They recognized that the provisions of the agreement must be met and that under Article IV they must indicate in writing their desire for relief work in order to be considered available for relief work. For example:

- 1 - In Docket No. 4261 (Reading Co.-Carmen) Award No. 5075, 191 furloughed employees filed notice of availability and were paid; others who had not signed up were not paid, including claimants.
- 2 - In Docket No. 4136 (Clinchfield-Electrical Workers) Award No. 5069, 114 registered availability and were paid; the two claimants did not and were asked specifically if they desired to sign up for relief work — they both said "NO".
- 3 - In other dockets various numbers of employees signed up and were paid and in some instances only one organization filed claims even though all of the organizations were in the same position.

The net result of these palpably erroneous awards is that a furloughed employee who, for his own personal reasons, refused to make himself available for relief work on the days surrounding a holiday and thereby made it impossible for carrier to issue a call for service "pursuant to the rules of the applicable agreement" is nevertheless to be considered available for service on those days. In other words, the Referee's interpretation of availability in applying Section 3 includes employees who deliberately have made themselves unavailable.

Employees refusing to make themselves available for relief work pursuant to the applicable rule would be relieved of any obligation under the controlling agreement to protect service on the days surrounding a holiday, and the entire burden of protecting service on those dates would fall on the employees who made themselves available, yet the unavailable would also qualify for holiday pay.

In yet another case, Docket No. 4055 (Tennessee Cent.-Machinists) Award No. 5062, the Referee awarded holiday pay to employees who were notified to return to regular service on their former positions one month after the holiday. In other words, these employes — who made no attempt or effort to make themselves available for relief work pursuant to the rules of the applicable agreement upon their furlough — could be notified to return to work as many as three months after a holiday and still obtain holiday pay according to the ludicrous conclusions of the Board.

In Second Division Award No. 3529, Grand Trunk Western Railroad Company v. Carmen, Referee Mortimer Stone participating, involving Article IV of the August 21, 1954 Agreement, the majority stated:

"The work involved here was relief work on regular positions during absence of regular occupants and claimant was a furloughed employe. Under Article IV carrier had the right to use him provided he had signified in the manner provided in paragraph two thereof his desire to be so used. Claimant had failed to signify such desire so Carrier was unable to secure him under the meaning of Rule 118 and a carman helper might be used. Carman Helper Bruce having notified Carrier of desire to be used as required by Article IV was properly used."

Also, in Second Division Award No. 4479, Norfolk & Western Railway Co. v. Sheet Metal Workers, Referee Jacob Seidenberg participating, which involved Article IV of the August 21, 1954 Agreement, the majority stated:

"The Division is constrained to hold that there were no furloughed employes 'available' at point 'B' other than the one employe there who signed up for relief work and was so used by the Carrier. The other furloughed employes who did not indicate their interest and desire to work in accordance with the provisions of Article IV were not furloughed employes 'available' for relief work."

In summary, the record indicates that in the past furloughed employes from one seniority point have been used for temporary work at a point or points where they enjoyed no seniority; that the canon of construction applied in construing Article IV against Rule 30 does not limit the aforementioned Article only to the territory where the furloughed worker seeking relief work enjoyed seniority; and that a furloughed worker is not an 'available' worker for relief work until he has indicated his desire therefor by complying with the appropriate provisions of the relevant agreements." * * *

Still another rule that militates against the Referee's interpretation of Section 3, Article III, August 19, 1960 Agreement and the Note is that an exception in an agreement is to be strictly construed, and clearly confined to the subject matter thereof. The general plan of the holiday pay agreement is that compensated service should be performed on the two workdays surrounding the holiday. The provisions for payment in event an employe is available for such service but is not called are in the nature of an exception to the general rule, and they should be strictly construed, thereby limiting the exception to those situations clearly provided for. Only the clearest possible language demanding the interpretation for which the Referee contends could ever justify the adoption of such an interpretation. The language of Section 3, Article III, August 19, 1960 Agreement and the Note precludes such an interpretation, instead of requiring it.

Finally, and in the same vein, where any other interpretation is permissible an agreement should never be given an interpretation that permits one to do indirectly that which he is expressly prohibited from doing directly. The interpretation of "available" in the Note to Section 3, Article III, August 19, 1960 Agreement expressly forbids considering one available if he "lays off of his own accord." The Referee's interpretation would permit an employe to lay off of his own accord on the workdays surrounding a holiday by the indirect means of refusing to make himself available for a call under the applicable rules. As we have noted, a furloughed employe who fails to make himself available for a call under the provisions of Article IV, Section 2 of the Agreement of August 21, 1954, thereby renders it impossible for the carriers to give him a call that is "issued pursuant to the rules of the applicable agreement." He thus voluntarily holds himself out of service, lays off; yet the Referee would have us consider him available under the provisions of Section 3, Article III, August 19, 1960 Agreement. Every applicable principle of contract construction precludes the interpretation for which the Referee contends.

From a review of the record in these cases even the most uninitiated in the field of labor contracts could not arrive at the conclusions reached by the Referee. It is obvious that the Referee completely misconstrued the record before him and evidently was unable to analyze the statements and citations entered by the carriers — otherwise how could such injudicious conclusions be reached.

For the reasons stated hereinabove we dissent. This dissent also applies to Awards Nos. 5120 and 5123.

Docket No. 4333 (Award No. 5077) encompassed an additional condition not found in the other dockets covered by this dissent. In this docket the Referee found that an employe on vacation must be given additional pay for a holiday that fell within his vacation period. This is a complete departure from many prior awards (given to the Referee at the time of discussion) of this Division which have held as in Award No. 3477 that —

"The foregoing agreement rules are clear, specific and unambiguous as applied to the facts of this case. The plain language of these rules indicates that the carrier was not required to grant Claimant Davis more compensation for Christmas Day, 1957 than the eight hours straight time pay which he received for that day. Said rules expressly provide that a holiday falling on a work day of the employes' regularly assigned work week while he is on vacation shall be considered as a work day for which the employe shall be paid in the amount of eight hours at straight time rate. No other agreement rule can be found which required any additional pay under the subject factual circumstances."

Also see Second Division Awards Nos. 2212, 2277, 2291, 2302, 2339, 2345, 2346, 2347, 2348, 2349, 2571, 2663, 2696, 2800, 3284, 3518, 3557, 3565, 3866 and 4283.

On this particular issue the employes presented no evidence which would overturn the prior holdings and give the Referee cause for such an erroneous holding as found in Docket No. 4333, Award No. 5077.

Since no reason is offered for setting aside our prior awards and since no agreement rule can be found which required any additional pay under the subject factual circumstances, we are compelled to believe that the Referee did not give a judicious review of the evidence presented to him in this case.

As to Award No. 5134: It has always been the established and accepted understanding and practice on this property, prior to the claim in this case, to consider that a mutually agreeable postponement of a scheduled conference date by either the employes or the carrier to a mutually satisfactory future date automatically extended the 60-day period for rendering a decision under the time limit on claims rules by the length of the agreed-upon postponement.

It has never previously been considered necessary by practice or understanding by either the employes or the carrier to formally agree in writing that the 60-day period for rendering a decision under the time limit on claims rules was extended by the length of the agreed-upon postponement when a postponement was mutually agreed-upon.

Carrier cited numerous cases to show that the postponement of scheduled conferences has always extended the time for rendering a decision under the provisions of time limit on claims rule and no special agreement granting a specific extension of time was required.

It seems obvious that to mutually agree to a future date for conference would automatically extend the 60-day period; otherwise, what would be the use of having a conference — it would be a useless gesture. In this particular case at one point the general chairman requested a postponement to another mutually satisfactory date and under these circumstances surely the carrier could only believe that the time was mutually extended.

It is the policy of the carrier that it is only after a conference is held to discuss a claim or grievance that a conference record is prepared containing the decision rendered at the conference and copy subsequently mailed to the general chairman.

The Referee states the citations offered by the carrier differ from the factual situation in this claim — they do not. For example, Award No. 3685 of this Division supports the position of the carrier. In that award Referee Johnson states:

“If the time limit had been insisted upon the matter would have been closed and out of the Superintendent's hands, and he would have had no authority to consider or decide it; consequently, there would have been no occasion to ask about, agree to or participate in a conference with him. The circumstances therefore evidence or constitute an agreement to extend the time limit, which had already run. No contention is made that under the Rule the agreement for extension must be made in any certain way, or before the 60 day period for decision has elapsed.” (Emphasis ours.)

For the reasons stated hereinabove we dissent.
